

BIO Carolyn M. Ellison is a native of Columbia, South Carolina. An impassioned woman of faith, her spiritual journey has led her to becoming an author, self-publisher, motivational speaker, and a writer of inspirational poetry. She is an incredible woman of her belief, as well as a true and loving mother and grandmother.

Mrs. Ellison is a devoted member of the Columbia Writers Alliance, as well as the Secretary on the Board of Directors. She also volunteers with the Columbia Urban League's youth program, "Taking Back our Youth" (T-BoY). Mrs. Ellison further served at other various leadership capacities within the church departments of the Youth Ministry, Singles Ministry, and Pastor's Aid Committee. Further proving her devotion towards learning, Mrs. Ellison is completing her senior year at Liberty University for the Bachelors of Science Degree in Christian Counseling.

Mrs. Ellison has penned four books to her credit: "Words to Live By," "Words to Live By Lesson Learned," "Mama Said Wisdom from the Heart," and "The Switch." She has also self-published a fifth work, co-authored by her granddaughters Kiasia and Kimauri Jacobs, titled, "Out of the Mouth of Babes-Wisdom from the Heart."
